Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Friday 19 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Chilly overnight. Becoming cloudier Saturday, perhaps with patchy rain.

This Evening and Tonight:
Dry with clear spells during the evening, perhaps allowing a slight frost for a time in prone rural spots. Tending to become cloudier from the north during the early hours, perhaps with the odd spot of rain developing. Minimum temperature 1 deg C (34 deg F).

Saturday:
Brightest first thing in the far south, however cloud should spread southwards during the morning giving a risk of patchy light rain more generally. Rather cool, but with light winds. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Mostly dry, with variable, often large amounts of cloud. Turning more unsettled and breezier through Tuesday, perhaps with late rain. Temperature near average: slight overnight frosts possible in prone spots.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.